

<https://osi-ngo.org/nos-actions/article/avril-conference-annuelle-internationale-a-l-onu-d-ong-a-ong-pour-le-s-objectifs>

April - Annual International Conference at United Nations : Peer-to-Peer NGOs for SDGs

- Our Actions -

Publication date: Wednesday 11 March 2020

Copyright © Objectif Sciences International - All rights reserved

This 5-day international conference at the UN enables countries, economic decision-makers, and solidarity actors from both developed and developing countries to create and launch next-generation NGO-type organizations.

Key outcomes: Job creation, Future solutions, Innovative organizations, Power of collaboration, and collective agility.

Conference “Peer-to-Peer NGOs for SDGs”

Developing NGO Activities and Best Practices in Program Management

Every year in April, at the Palais des Nations, Geneva.

This five-day conference, aimed at NGOs in the process of creation or development, will present and model the operations of various types of mandates co-existing within an NGO. Attending NGOs will strengthen each other in their expertise and successful solutions.

The conference will feature a series of presentations, workshops, and meetings covering the wide range of possibilities in NGO creation projects (including an introduction to the concept via a ‘Serious game’ at the beginning of the conference). Building on the unique example and the rapid, successful development of the NGO Objectif Sciences International (OSI), seminar participants will gain comprehensive knowledge and expertise in the functioning of an NGO and in managing specific program mandates (e.g., pedagogical, logistical, technical, developmental) within an NGO. This conference also provides training on various tools (both technological and pedagogical) specifically developed and/or optimized by OSI, available to other NGOs during this event. These tools help effectively and fully carry out a Program Manager mandate within an NGO or collectively manage the local group of an international NGO.

Additionally, this event will offer OSI’s personalized support to individuals and organizations planning to establish an NGO, as well as to NGOs wishing to expand their activities in support of the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

Finally, individuals or NGOs interested in developing a partnership with OSI will find at this conference the resources necessary to establish and grow such partnerships.

At the end of these five days, benefiting from and enriched by the unique experience and expertise of OSI, participants will be capable and independent in ensuring fundamental NGO organizational principles within their own projects, both operationally, institutionally, locally, and internationally, knowing where to find the necessary methodological resources.

To obtain the Program and register:

Enter your email address here

Information will display on your screen.

Please also check your spam folder!